2013 OUTLAW TRAIL QUILT EVENT

South Sioux City is the first stop on the 2013 Outlaw Trail Quilt Event., on October 11-13.

"This semi-annual event is a treasured experience enjoyed by many travelers along the 231 mile route packed with many, many quilts to view and six wonderful quilting speakers. Watch for quilt signage along the complete route. Enjoy the Fall foliage and test your culinary appetite with the local cuisines. Visit each location for $1.00, free-will donations for each speaker. "

In preparation for this event, we are looking for volunteers in a number of areas.

1. We are recruiting local quilt makers to show their work.
2. Volunteers to work during the weekend of the show to greet and watch the quilts.
3. We also have a few openings to do one hour presentation during on Friday and Saturday.

If you would like to volunteer for this event contact Lois Schock at 712+281-0657 or Dan Nieman at the library 402-494-7545.

On a related note, if you do needlework, you may be interested in our Tangled Yarns group.

Tangled Yarns meets each Tuesday at 6:30 p.m. During the meeting the participants visit with one another and teach one another how to do various new stitches or crafts.

If you like to sew and would like to meet with others that do to, Tangled Yarns is for you.

We look forward to seeing you there

STAFF BIOGRAPHIES: MEET KIM GREEN-HAILEY

Hi I'm Kim and it is my pleasure to work at the library. I have worked at the library for about two years, beginning as an intern and accepting a part-time position, when the opportunity arose.

Currently, I am on schedule to receive my B.A. from the University of Nebraska-Omaha in December.

I was drawn to librarianship, because of my belief in the importance of literacy. With the development of good literacy skills, the world opens-up. I am proud to be a part of development literacy and life long learning skills of the residents South Sioux City and Dakota County.

When I am not working at the library, or on school work, I enjoy gardening, spending time with my family, being outdoors and reading. I enjoy reading mystery/suspense novels, historical fiction and history in general.

I am also an avid Pinterest hobbyist. Join me for one of my Pinterest classes at the library.

HIDDEN TREASURES: LOCAL HISTORY

The library is a treasure trove of local history. Look for some of these when you visit the library, or the online catalog.

City Directories contain nuggets of history on every person, business, and building that is in South Sioux City. These directories go back to 1960 and are available for you to use in the library.

Remembering Yesterday, Embracing Tomorrow: Q-125 Cardinal Quasiquincentennial Festival Days South Sioux City Nebraska, 1887-2012 tells the story of our history, focusing on the last 25 years.

South Sioux City Centennial Cookbook, 1887-1987 is a commemorative cookbook from the centennial celebration. Discover what was cooking in South Sioux City kitchens during the celebration.

South Sioux City High School Cardinal: We have a select number of yearbooks available for a stroll down memory lane, or to do a little serious research. We are also taking donations of yearbooks South Sioux City, 1887-1987: Where the Good Life Gets Better is the centennial history of the city and one of the core references we have for city history.

Dakota County: Tombstone Inscriptions by Jody Boyd covers each of the cemeteries in Dakota County.

BANNED BOOKS WEEK READATHON

In commemoration of Banned Books Week in the United States, South Sioux City Public Library will host two events.

On Monday September 23rd, Library Director, Dave Mixdorf will present a discussion on Banned Books Week.

On Tuesday September 24th we will host a Read-a-Thon from 9:00 a.m. to 8:00 p.m.

We invite people to sign-up and come to the library to read banned books. Readers will read to themselves and the times are in 15-minute segments.

Banned Books Week is the national book community's annual celebration of the freedom to read. Hundreds of libraries and bookstores around the country draw attention to the problem of censorship by mounting displays of challenged books and hosting a variety of events. Banned Books Week was launched in 1982 in response to a sudden surge in the number of challenges to books in schools, bookstores and libraries. More than 11,300 books have been challenged since 1982. According to the American Library Association, there were 326 challenges reported to the Office of Intellectual Freedom in 2011, and many more go unreported.

STAFF RECOMENDATIONS

Happy, Happy, Happy by Phil Robertson is written by, and about, Phil from the show Duck Dynasty. If you are a fan of the show, you will definitely like this book. The story follows Phil from his very poor childhood, his master's degree, his bout with drinking and then quitting, and lastly how he turned his idea for a duck call into the Duck Dynasty. I learned a lot about Phil's life and a little more about ducks than I wanted to, but overall this was an excellent book!

"Habibi" a graphic novel by Craig Thompson. Craig's beautiful and intricate artwork flows across the pages of this book that is part coming of age story, part love story, and part Arabian Nights. This book follows two young children, Dodola and Zam, sold into slavery. They manage to escape one night and create a life for themselves in the harsh desert. One day many years later, Dodola is captured, unbeknownst to Zam. Will the two ever reunite? Will Zam ever be able to find a way to express his love to the woman who once saved his life? With such a gripping storyline, enhanced by amazing artwork, I would recommend this book as an introduction to what graphic novels can be.

Inside Apple: How America's Most Admired- and Secretive-Company

Really Works by Adam Lashinsky takes an historic look inside Apple with this study. The author covers the history of the company, from its beginning to the death of Steve Jobs. The reader discovers how the personality of Steve Jobs is infused into everything Apple does. In the end he makes some observations about the possible future of the company. (This is based on the audiobook version of the book).

The Tipping Point: How Little Things Make a Big Difference by Malcolm Gladwell. This book looks at the subject of trends, more precisely, what makes things go viral. He covers a diverse number of examples from skateboarder fashion, to the popularity of Rebecca Wells's book The Divine Secrets of the Ya-Ya Sisterhood. In the end he deals with how urban legends take hold in a culture, the possibility of immunity to viral trends and much more. (Based on the audiobook version of the book.)
